PREVIOUS MEETING (5/16/18) by Ron Rayevich

Have you ever wondered what Whole Person Education was all about? Mark Libowitz, MA, MSC, a Community Social Worker and Psychotherapist, who worked 30 years in Chicago and California and the last 18 years in Sarasota as a Whole Person Life Coach, explained it. He founded the Family Harmony Institute to provide families with a framework and roadmap for becoming both happy and successful. In this day and age of dysfunctional families, what could be more important than allowing children to grow up in households where they feel loved, respected, and nourished. In a very busy world where two income families are the norm, taking time to understand what is and what is not working in building a successful family seems to be of critical importance. Mark said that education was one of the keys to understanding how to properly develop our mind, body, and spirit (the whole person) in such a way that results in the development of a happy, healthy, and productive family. Mark noted that in many very poor countries, where individuals appear to be the happiest, it is because they were not overstressed by going out daily in search of more and more income to support a life style, which in more prosperous countries was seen to be the norm. Thanks, Mark, for sharing your insights with us.
